PROTECT MEAT AGAINST SPOILAGE

Home-cured meat provides economical eating for many rural families in Virginia. To prevent loss to this supply, curers should protect their meat against insects, say VPI entomologist A. P. Morris.

There are four main pests of stored meat. They are ham or cheese skippers, mites, red-legged ham beetles, and larder beetles.

Perhaps the best means of prevention is to keep these pests from becoming established in the smokehouse. Do this by properly cleaning the area before each killing season.

All four of the pests breed in animal products and by-products.

Cleaning out all cracks in shelves, floors, and work table will help rid the premises of the insects. Soapy water and a brush should be used. Throw out all scraps and greasy materials left over from the previous year.

The best time to do this cleaning job is in late summer or early fall while the storage area is empty, Morris advises. After cleaning up the area, spray it with lindane, DDT or methoxychlor in water solution. Be sure to cover work tables, shelves and other places where meat could come in contact with the sprayed surface.

Use heavy paper or a similar material.

Meat-storage house should be clean, tight, and well ventilated.

Flies, ants, and other insects should be kept out since they carry mites. All windows and doors should fit tightly so that rats, mice, or other animals cannot get in. Openings should be covered with fine screening having not less than 30 meshes per inch.

When the meat is ready for storage, protect it by wrapping and hanging, or by embedding in some material such as small grain or cottonseed hulls. Examine the meat once a month. Old wrappings or packing (embedding) material may need replacing.

When meat is held over the summer months, supplementary insecticide treatments with a paintbrush may be necessary. Floors, walls, ends of racks, and floor cracks should be treated again. Be careful not to get any of the insecticide on meat or working surfaces when making the application.

Keep meat scraps in tight containers until they are used or rendered. Meat will do better if it can be kept at a temperature below 45 degrees Fahrenheit, as insect growth will not take place at such a temperature.

QUESTIONS OF THE WEEK

(Editor's note: Here are the questions asked most frequently by Virginia farmers during the past week, as reported by county agricultural agents. Staff members of the VPI Agricultural Extension Service and/or Experiment Station supply the answers).

A. Yes, any time during the dormant season.

Q. Is it too late to sow wheat?

A. It is past the recommended seeding date.

Q. What is the best control for crickets in dwellings?

A. Apply DDT as a 5 per cent spray or 10 per cent powder, or chlordane as a 2 per cent spray or 3 per cent powder, around baseboards, in closets, and in cracks, or other places where crickets may enter all openings, and tight-en screens, windows, and doors to keep the crickets from entering the house.

Q. Is it too late to seed Ky. 31 fescue?

A. Yes.

Q. Will the seed of the new fluecured tobacco variety, Virginia 12, be available this year?

A. Yes, through the usual channels.

Q. How can I control wild onion in lawns?

A. Use an ester form of 2,4-D at the rate of about 3 tablespoons per gallon of water to each 1,000 square feet of lawn.

Q. What small grain can I seed now to harvest for feed late next spring?

A. It is past the recommended dates for fall seedings of small grains. Better wait until February when you can seed winter oats.

Q. What variety of tobacco should I plant on blackshank - infested soil?

A. There are several disease-resistant varieties available. A list with this year's suggestions based on latest research will be prepared for distribution next month. County agents will be furnished copies of the list and the information will be released to press and radio.

Q. Will it pay to feed home-grown grains to my livestock?

A. Generally, yes!

Q. Should I consider egg production as a way to increase my income.

VETERANS' INFORMATION

Carlton W. Bragg, Officer-in-Charge of the Veterans Administration, Lynchburg VA Office, appealed to veterans and their dependents to take care and fill in all spaces on the forms when they apply for veterans' benefits.

Every item on the application forms has to be filled in legibly, he pointed out, before VA can adjudicate the claim. The veteran will suffer a delay in the decision on his claim if VA has to write back and ask him for additional information.

KNOW THE WEATHER

By E. H. Sims

What is the significance of the closeness of the lines on weather maps?

When the lines on the weather map in your newspaper are close together (there lines are isobars) that means pressure changes are great. Isobars are merely lines connecting points on the map which have reported the same barometric pressure.

If the pressure differential is great, even over a short distance, winds, and probably stiff ones, are sure to be encountered. That means, for all practical purposes, that the top of the great layer of gases surrounding the earth is extremely hilly, so that air rushes from high peaks into the valleys nearby at great speed.

This speed, or wind velocity, causes heavy wind. If the incline is not steep — the lines (or isabars) not close together — then the wind will flow more slowly, down a more gradual incline to the top of the layer of gas above you.

Hixburg

Hixburg, Dec. 8.- Fifty years ago from next Sunday, Dec. 13, the Rev. W. Twyman Williams was ordained to the ministry of the Presbyterian Church at Falls Springs Presbyterian Church in Rockbridge County, in 1909.

On next Sunday the three churches, Appomattox Court House Presbyterian Church, Stonewall Presbyterian Church and Walker's Presbyterian Church at Hixburg, which he now serves, will celebrate with a union service at the Appomattox Church.

The Rev. Dudley M. McIver, Dr. Williams' roommtae at the Union Theological Seminary, in Richmond, will deliver the message at 11:00 A. M. Dinner will be served in the church dining room at 12:30 P. M. Besides members, friends are invited.

On Thanksgiving Day, Lee Glenn had eaten his turkey dinner and was stretched out for a nap, when he heard the cry at the woodpile. Two little boys were getting kinding for their mother. Luther was splitting, and Twyman (named for Dr. Twyman Williams) was picking up. As Luther has only one good eye, he failed to see Twyman's little hand reach for a stick. The ax came down on Twyman's forefinger on his left hand and nearly severed it from the hand. Lee took the child in his pick-up and drove with one hand all the way to Farmville, and held Twyman's finger up with his other hand. The Doctors think they may be able to save the finger.

On Wednesday, Mr. Ernest Garson was brought from Lynchburg General Hospital to the home of his daughter, Mrs. Nelson Hix, in Prospect. Mr. Carson says he is better.

Mrs. Hollis Maxwell tumbled down some steps and was taken to the Farmville Hospital. She is reported to be improving.
